HICKS

Dr. George W. Hicks, 85, who died May 16, 2002, enjoyed five very different careers during his lifetime. He was a chemical engineer, a U.S. Army Officer in World War II, a general practice physician, rancher and church official. He was born October 6, 1916, to Carl and Ruth Lundy Hicks of Twelve Corners, Berrien County, Michigan. They, and his only sibling, Mildred Miller, are deceased.

His education began in a one-room schoolhouse where, as he reached upper grades, he helped the teacher with beginning students. On his way to and from school, he ran trap lines. After being graduated from Benton Harbor High School, he hitch hiked across southern Michigan to Ann Arbor to attend the University of Michigan, his last two years taking his sister with him. He left the University the first time with a degree in chemical engineering, then working for Chicago Pump Company installing equipment in sewage plants across the United States.

When Pearl Harbor was bombed, George returned to Benton Harbor to report in and was accepted for duty in the medical corps as commanding officer of the 60th Malaria Control Unit. He served for four years, two years in the Southwest Pacific, on New Guinea, Morotai and the southern Philippines. He received permission from General McArthur to arm his men while on New Guinea.

When peace came his dream of becoming a physician became a reality, for he was accepted by the University of Michigan for the class of 1950. Receiving his sheepskin, he headed for Mississippi to train for public health work, but with four children, he then hung out his shingle and went to work in the shipyard town of Pascagoula. In his years there, he delivered over 3,000 babies, climbed a shipyard gantry to pronounce a man dead, and on a stormy night went out into the Gulf of Mexico with the Coast Guard to aid a fisherman whose arm was caught in a winch.

In 1973 Dr. Hicks practiced office medicine in Grand Bay, Alabama and personally saw to his herd of Santa Gertrudis cattle. During these years he and his wife attended Spring Hill College in Mobile, studying theology.

With children on their own, Dr. Hicks and his wife moved to St. Croix, USVI for seven years. There he was employed as a Department of Health clinic doctor. Nights he studied to become a permanent deacon in the Catholic Church and served as such in St. Croix, the Mobile area and in Eufaula.

Memberships include life memberships in both the American Legion and VFW with Pascagoula posts and former memberships in the Jewish-Christian Dialogue of Mobile, Deep South Dulcimer Association of Mobile and the Alabama Writers Conclave.

Survivors include his wife of over 61 years, Alice (Betty); daughters, Nancy and her husband, Lloyd Nelson of Overton, Texas, Jane and her husband, Tom Walker of Beaver Creek, Ohio, Mary and her husband, Joseph Kendzicky of Locust Grove, Ga., Nina Burchette of Grand Bay, Ala., and Lora and her husband, Andy Healey of Haleiwa, Hawaii; grandchildren, Stephanie Weaver, Irvington, Ala., Jennifer Shannen, River View, Fla., Lora Domingue, Carrollton, Texas, Adam Nelson, Lindale, Texas, Sara Lake, Tyler, Texas, Amie Flowers, Mobile, Ala., Rachel Walker, Tuscaloosa, Ala., Kate Walker, Evansville, Ind., Mark and Michael Healey, Haleiwa, Hawaii; great grandsons, Cody and Chas Weaver, Irvington, Ala., and Bryson Nelson of Lindale, Texas. WITH TRUST, I

When I no longer hear the soft-sound rain,
Or feel a breeze or taste some honied sweet,
    Or read a lovely poem once again,
    Then will I garner what for me is meet.
Today's bright coin is mine, all mine, to spend,
    Invest in friendship, poetry, or lore,
    Or squander it to some quite chancey end,
    Or budget time as I have done before,
    Oh, I do love the rain, the breeze, the spell
Of life's sweet moments, but with ev'ry breath
I have God's goodness now to treasure well;
I know He will not change when I meet death.
    For when I leave my loves, as die I must,
    I'll go in joyful peace and utter trust.
